

MARYLAND OYSTER MEN SEE PROSPEROUS SEASON

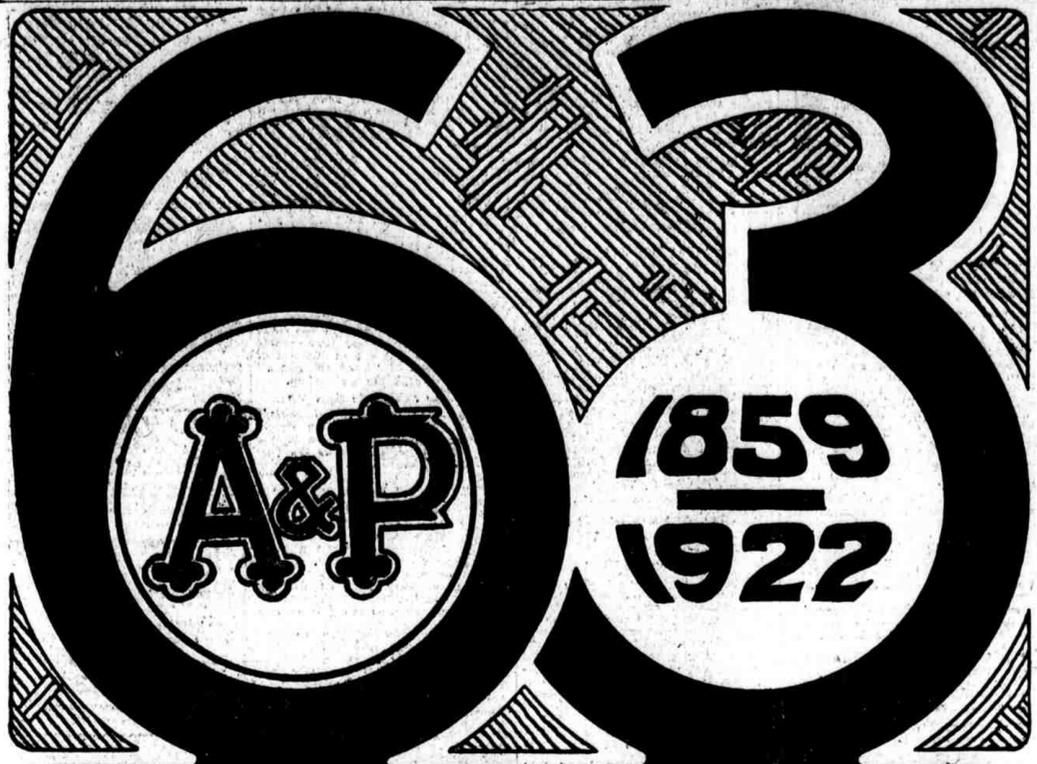

Boats Begin Their Dredging as Cool Weather Comes On
Crisfield, Md., Oct. 23.—A survey of the oyster beds of the Chesapeake Bay made by business agents indicates that unless something interferes the oyster season will prove to be one of the best the Eastern Shore of Maryland and lower Delaware has ever experienced.
With the coming of cooler weather the boats have begun dredging. About this season there are 1000 boats which will seek the bivalves, while on the upper end of the Eastern Shore, near Cambridge, there are more than 500. Beds that have been examined reveal a tremendous growth of oysters this summer. The bivalves are not only large in size, but of unusual flavor. Ordinarily it was considered profitable to one to two quarts were obtained from a bushel, but the growth this year has so well filled out that from three to four quarts of oysters are being obtained from a bushel. It is the biggest yield of oysters in this respect that the Eastern Shoremen have seen in a long time.

Oyster packing houses are getting everything in readiness for a bumper season. They have engaged shuckers, many of them being women, and have made arrangements to market the bivalves.

BOGUS SECURITIES SUBJECT FOR COMMERCE CHAMBER

Speakers to Be Heard on Legislative Matters at Annual Meeting
Harrisburg, Oct. 23.—How to curtail the flotation of worthless and bogus securities and save millions of dollars lost yearly by small and innocent investors—a question that confronts every community—is to receive attention at the annual meeting of the State Chamber of Commerce in this city November 14 and 15.
The State Chamber of Commerce has actively promoted a study of "Blue Sky" legislation. John S. Fisher, of Indiana, former banking commissioner, will make recommendations as to the best kind of "Blue Sky" legislation for the State.

Others equally prominent are to discuss, "Business Conditions," "Farm Bureau Work," "Less Politics in Business," "The Coal Situation," "Public Education," "State Welfare Work" and "Reorganization of State Government."
The State Affairs Committee of chambers of commerce represented in the State body meet the morning of November 14 to discuss and present new subjects for the State body to investigate.
In three years membership in the State organization has increased from seventeen chambers of commerce to ninety-eight.
